Boarded up window inside museum gift shop | Nathan Solis

By Nathan Solis

MONTECITO HEIGHTS — Heritage Square Museum officials today are assessing the damage left behind by a driver who plowed his vehicle through the front gate and crashed into the facade of the museum's gift shop early Sunday morning. The front of the Palms Depot, built in 1875, was struck by the vehicle, cracking windows and destroying some furniture.

The crash occurred early Sunday morning around 3 a.m. Nearby residents reported hearing the sound of a vehicle speeding up and then crashing into the fence and then the depot building. Rivas says that the driver of the vehicle did return after the incident to formally apologize to the staff. "So that is a small consolation," said Jessica Rivas, director of education and volunteer programs.

According to the police report the driver of the vehicle did not sustain any injuries.

The museum grounds near the 110 Arroyo Seco Parkway feature several Victorian-era buildings that have been relocated from other others part of Los Angeles.

Rivas said it's too early to put a price tag on the damage to the building and contents, but she said the damage is severe, including the destruction of a recently restored roll top desk inside the gift shop.

Nathan Solis is a Highland Park resident who writes about and photographs the L.A. music scene. You can find more of Solis stories, reviews and photos at Smashed Chair.

2a Update about 'SAVE the Historic Figueroa-Riverside Bridge and Preser

Mon Apr 7, 2014 10:29 pm (PDT) . Posted by: asncaalert

Check out a great video on the Pop-Up Park at the Figueroa-Riverside Bridge. http://youtu.be/ei1K9kz_2ns http://youtu.be/ei1K9kz_2ns

Like CicLAvia, this Park should occur everyday in Los Angeles!

Thank you all for signing and keeping the vision alive. The support base is increasing every day.

No RSVP required

Egyptologist Maggie Geoga will read the ancient Egyptian story "The Doomed Prince" at the Bowtie Parcel on the site of Michael Parker's The Unfinished. Dating from the 18th Dynasty and translated from Hieratic text, the story is one of the most frustrating and famous of the ancient Egyptian texts. Preserved on Papyrus in the British Museum of London, the original ending of the story was lost in an explosion. Eternally incomplete, the story has been translated dozens of times and the ending continually speculated upon by readers and scholars alike for decades.

Maggie Geoga is a graduate student in Egyptology at Brown University, where she studies ancient Egyptian language and literature. She has worked at the Field Museum in Chicago, assisting in the collection and analysis of CT scans of Egyptian human and animal mummies and working on the Predynastic Project. Her research interests include ancient Egyptian conceptions of truth and fiction in historical writing, the transmission of narrative texts across time and space, the love songs of Deir el-Medina, and mortuary religion in the Pyramid Texts.

This is a kid friendly event.

Read Maggie's article 'The Unfinished: The Meaning of the Obelisk' on KCET's Artbound. The Unfinished, a project by Michael Parker is produced by Clockshop with additional support provided by an ARC grant from the Center for Cultural Innovation and in collaboration with California State Parks as part of the series Frogtown Futuro.
